

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—To what extent is the Civil Works Administration absorbing the unemployed? Is it taking employed labor away from industry? How much does political pull count in getting a CWA job? What is the spirit of the men in the jobs?

These are some of the many questions being asked by readers of this column. To answer them, the Merry-Go-Rounders have done some research in CWA job-getting. Below is printed the first installment of the report.

LINES OF HOPE

Two long lines of men and a few women extended out into Indiana avenue in front of the Washington branch of the CWA office. An unemployed taxi-driver explained how to negotiate them.

"One is just waiting to get a card. The other is just bringing their card back. When you get your card, they register you. Then in about a week, you come back to get your job if you're lucky."

"If you're wise, sign up as a laborer," he cautioned. "I signed as a chauffeur and been waiting three weeks."

Despite this, practically every man in the line radiated optimism. There was complete confidence they would at last get jobs. Few of them were much interested in who was supplying the jobs. Few of them cared much about the policies of the administration, though most of them, if they talked politics at all, thought Roosevelt was a pretty good guy, and really trying to do things.

There were only two exceptions to this—both in the white collar class. One, a jeweler, had worked in a jewelry store until recently, when successive pay cuts had whittled his pay down to $2.00 a week. Finally the store, threatened with bankruptcy, dropped him altogether. The other, a chiropractor, lacked enough business to pay his rent, and threw up his practice about a year ago. What he had been living on since, he did not say, but like the jeweler, he claimed Roosevelt's policies were mere make-shifts, that the CWA could not possibly last three months.

"However, I don't mind seeing in a line with bums, the jeweler said. "I never did look down on (Continued on Page 2)

Two Women Wounded In Rent Battle

OAKLAND, Dec. 26.—UP—An angry landlord who confessed he shot and critically wounded two women tenants because they owed him about $25 for rent was hurried to Eastern police station today. Neighbors had gathered around the assault and had shouted threats.

Jack Kutsch, 29, a retired cook, was charged with the shootings. Mrs. Adelia Willard, 47, was reported near death with a bullet through her neck. Her daughter, Mrs. Lois Naeve, 22, was shot in the chest.

Kutsch was alleged to have used a .22 calibre rifle. Police said he had been drinking.

"They owed me a month and a half rent at $15 per month and they were too—fresh. You can do what you wish with me," he was quoted by police as saying.

Officers said Kutsch ordered the women to pack up and leave, but that he returned with a rifle as they were leaving the house and opened fire. Neighbors intervened before arrival of police.

Greta Garbo May Start Movie Firm

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—UP—Reports that Greta Garbo, Swedish film star, was considering becoming an independent producer in her native country were given little credence here today.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials pointed out that Garbo's new contract, signed before she started work on her latest picture, has three years to run. This is the usual form of contract which compels the player to engage in film work only for the contracting company.

MECHANIC CONFESSES TO KILLING

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 26.—UP—Police announced today that Robert H. Wiles, 49 year old automobile mechanic, confessed to abducting and beating to death Herbert H. Harris, Jr., 15 year old junior high school student.

Sheriff T. A. Hesse said that under continued questioning, Wiles continued to admit the crime.

Although authorities did not reveal full details of the confession, it was believed the plot involved an attempt to collect ransom from the boy's father, manager of a local grocery company.

An inquest into the case was continued tonight due to the absence of material witnesses. The youth's mother was ill from shock and unable to appear.

A large crowd gathered about the courthouse where the inquest was scheduled, but there was no outward threat of violence. Wiles was being held at the state prison where guards were stationed.

No ransom demands had been made when the body of young Harris was found in a deserted farmhouse 12 miles from here late Monday.

The youth had been missing since Saturday when he was last seen riding in a car with a middle-aged man whose description led to the arrest of Wiles.

The prisoner made his confession at the state prison where he is held for safe keeping after telling several conflicting stories.

Col. A. N. Scarborough, superintendent of the prison, said Wiles admitted luring the boy to the deserted farmhouse and beating him to death.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS REPORTED

State officers made by Officer Ludwig at the noon of discovery on last evening that some of the best operating places in the city were operating in the same old time way. They were not only in the state liquor laws, but the officers were seeing all kinds of hard liquor over the bar.

Councilman Ludwig mentioned one place in particular, stating that complaints were coming in daily about the conduct of the place. The councilman said he investigated and found the complaints to be true, and that if action should be taken before the violations became great.

In some windows are being covered up with the old time signs, and in others the bar is placed in the rear of the building behind swinging doors.

Councilman Russell Meyer, who is also an agent of the state board of equalization, said the incidents reported were clearly violations of the state law. "The present license," said Meyer, "are only to the end of the year, and those who are violating the law, will find that they will be unable to renew their licenses."

Mention was also made that in some of the best places, drunken women were seen coming out of them, and in some instances had to be carried out.

Attorney Tom Carlson said if these violations are taking place, prosecutions should follow.

All of the dealers have been warned by the special agents of the state board, but apparently the warning has had no effect.

City Manager J. A. McVittie was instructed to notify the places of which complaint have been made, and if changes of operation do not follow, prosecutions will ensue.

One Loves
but Once
By FRANK BRADY
1933 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

David Carlyle, young American scientist, planning a dangerous expedition into the jungles of South America to search for a missing friend, marries Madi Wisner, beautiful Hungarian actress. As the time approaches for his departure, he begins to worry about how Madi will take care of herself in his absence, for he has little money to leave her, and she is out of work. She tells him cryptically that, though she is his wife, there is a certain something in her that he does not see or understand, or he would not worry about her future.

CHAPTER XV
WHAT Madi had meant by her words she did not explain. Carlyle was puzzled. But he did not question her. If she wished to say more, well and good. If not, he would not press her.

If she noticed his mood of speculation, she gave no indication of it.

"Besides," she continued, "suppose I have no luck in getting work as an actress. That is not the end of things. I have another vocation. And at that I am very good."

He looked at her inquiringly. "You would never guess," she said. "So I will tell you—I can sew."

"Sew?"

"She nodded. 'Yes, sew. I do not mean sewing in the way that every woman can sew. I mean very special sewing. Did I never tell you? It was because I learned to sew that I went on the stage. Would you like to know about it?'"

"Of course," said Carlyle.

"WELL," said Madi, "it was like this: We were—my father and mother and I—quite poor. My father was a pianist. I think it is from him that I have my little brother's gift for music. Part of it, at least. No, I had never worn anything that in time, play the violin as my father could not hope to play the piano. My father had talent—some. But there are many musicians in Hungary with talent in that he could always find encouragement. And he was not too strong. So I had no great amount of money."

"In a family like that there is always sewing and mending to be done. My mother, it seems to me, was a lady at work—with my father's clothes, with her own, and with mine. It was she who taught me to sew. And later, when Michael was born, and she did not live to see him, I had to earn some money. What my father could make was something. But not enough, because sometimes for months he would be unable to find work. He did not like what I did, but he knew it had to be. I went to work in a dress-maker's shop. For a modiste."

Madi smiled at the term. That is what she called herself. But there wasn't a great deal of mode. It is very funny, when I think of the styles. But if they were not

"THE dress," she recounted, "was a little long for me, so I had to stand very straight, to make myself tall, so I can walk in it. And as I look in the glass, I think I am the queen herself, of course, all of it. Michael will, in time, play the violin as my father could not hope to play the piano. My father had talent—some. But there are many musicians in Hungary with talent in that he could always find encouragement. And he was not too strong. So I had no great amount of money."

NEW BUICKS ON DISPLAY AT KRAITZER'S

The veil of secrecy that for some weeks past has shrouded the announcement of the Buick line for 1934 will be raised today with the display of the new models in the showrooms of C. C. Kraitzer at 202 Tenth street, between the Bissell and Bissell buildings. The presentation is of unusual interest because the appearance of the new Buicks will give the public the first opportunity to become intimately acquainted with "Knee-Action" wheels, the fundamental change in motor car design, and the front wheel steering that will be a feature of all the new models.

Nineteen individual models with sleek stream lines in bodies and fenders and with every luxury and convenience found in modern motor cars, make up the 1934 Buick line. These are the new models, which are being displayed at Kraitzer's.

From whatever angle the new Buicks are viewed, they are an immediate and lasting impression of beauty and refinement. From the side, the entire new Fisher body shows the development of streamlining, the year's models to their fullest advantage. These are the new Buicks, which are being displayed at Kraitzer's.

BLIZZARD CONDITIONS PREVAILING

(By UNITED PRESS)

Blizzard conditions prevailed throughout the northern half of the United States Tuesday, paralyzing air, land and sea travel, and causing untold suffering.

At least 60 persons were attributed to the storms.

New York City and the northeastern states were whipped by gales and furious snowstorms. The middle west and Pacific northern states suffered under heavy snowstorms, and floods. Avalanches and floods were reported in Washington, Oregon and Idaho where 23 deaths were reported.

The number of snow-fall in New York City, according to reports, was 10 inches.

Flurries were reported in the west.

The lowest temperature was reported from Leadville, Minn., where the mercury dropped to more than 40 degrees below zero.

Shipping was paralyzed on the Eastern seaboard, with ocean liners riding at anchor off shore, unwilling to hazard a run to port.

Shipping on the Great Lakes also was forced to a standstill. Only a few small boats ventured out and two of those foundered in the roaring inland seas, with a loss of eight lives.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (U.P.)—A bitter cold wave, settled down over the Midwest tonight, drove temperatures far below zero in many cities, crippled traffic, caused scores of deaths and made suffering.

The Arctic blast, which swept from Alaska to the Eastern seaboard on Christmas night, high winds, chilled the Great Lakes into a fury, sent at least two boats and their crews to the bottom, and piled snowdrifts waist deep in highways throughout the northern half of the country.

After the snow ceased falling, the temperature began dropping rapidly.

In Nebraska, the mercury stood below zero in many cities, and in Chicago and vicinity it dropped tonight to the zero mark, with indications it could go to below by morning.

In Wisconsin, many cities reported sub-zero weather and at La Crosse it was so cold that two automobiles froze when they left the streets.

At least six deaths in Chicago were attributed to the cold wave, but police could not identify the victims.

At Milwaukee, a CWA worker, June Moran, 39, died of a heart attack, and others were given that the CWA men must not work after the mercury dropped to below zero.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (U.P.)—New York City lay under a thick blanket of snow and ice today, and one of the most bitter days in recent years.

The storm which struck the proportions of a blizzard, at least of whicher falling in rapid succession, hampered traffic, closed schools and closed the city's main thoroughfares.

More than 10 inches of snow fell over a period of seven hours, and an army of shovellers worked feverishly throughout the day in an effort to keep open avenues of transportation.

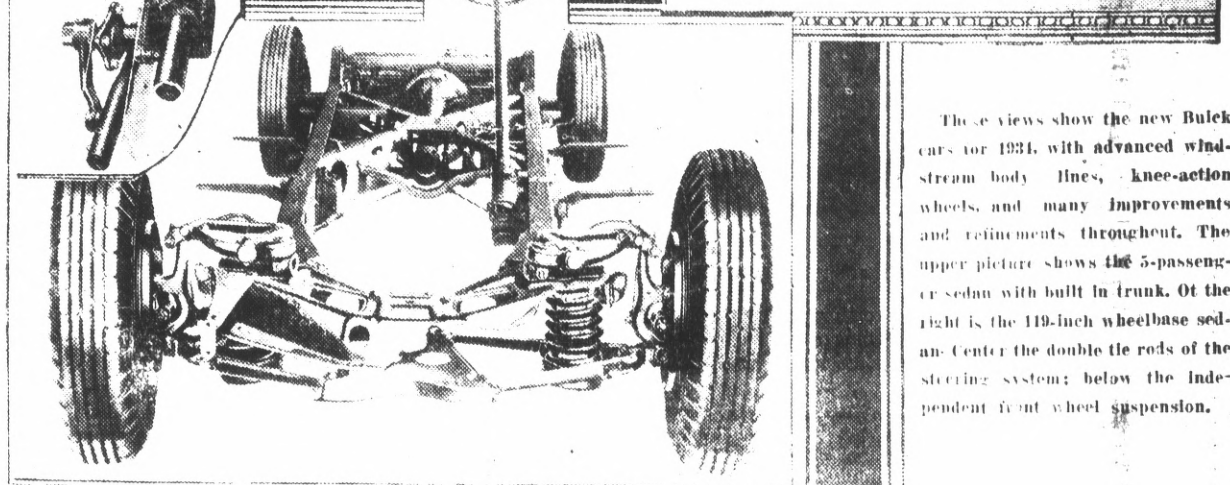

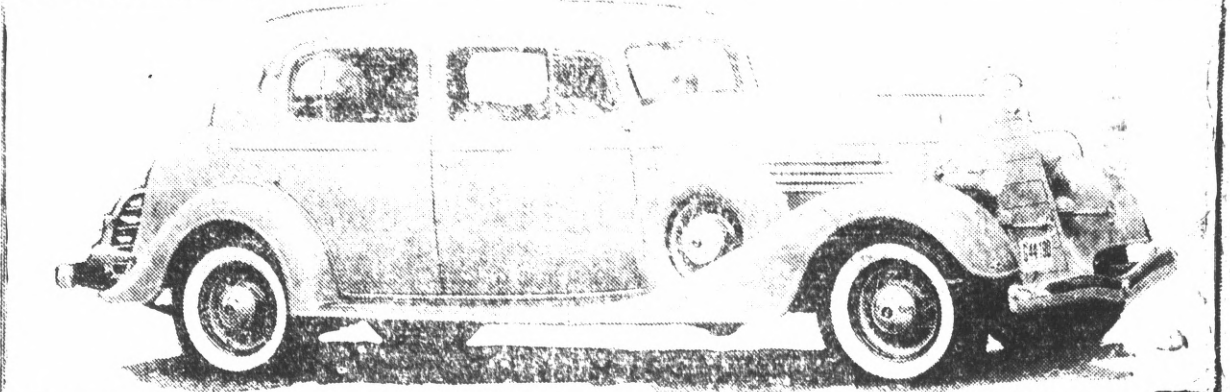

Many persons were injured in falls and automobile accidents, and 300 commuters were shaken up severely when two trolley cars collided in the Hudson river.

Settlement Near In Flood Estate

AN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26 (U.P.)—Theodore J. Roche, counsel for the James Flood estate, said today that agreement has been reached in many details of an out-of-court settlement of the suit of Constance May Gavin, who seeks a daughter's share, or two-thirds, of the $8,000,000 estate.

Several points, including "one big one," have not been touched in the agreement, however, Roche said. He predicted conclusion of the negotiations, either for a settlement or a decision to permit the suit to again reach the courts in January, within a few days.

Season's Greetings

The Chamber of Commerce sends New Year's greetings to its members and to the public.

The year 1933, which is about to pass from our midst, hasn't been such a bad old year after all, and there are plenty of reasons for believing that 1934 will be even better. In 1933 the country laid the foundation for a great new social movement which already has had the effect of stopping the deflation and starting the country back on the upward trail. If the trail is as yet faintly marked, still it's there and we're following it.

In 1934 the upward movement will be greatly accelerated unless all signs now fail.

Two developments of great importance to Richmond and California occurred in 1933:

1. RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA.
2. REPEAL OF PROHIBITION.

Russia would not have sought recognition if it had not greatly desired to purchase American goods. We on the west coast are going to profit by these purchases. Richmond is scheduled for a big slice of the Russian pie, both because of our manufacturing enterprises and our shipping facilities. We will make goods for Russia, and we will ship them over our local facilities.

California is the principal wine producing section of the country. The principal part of that production comes from Napa, Sonoma, Marin and Livermore valleys. Richmond can get its share of this wine business for storage and shipping.

Industries in Richmond in 1933 have done as well as those anywhere, and better than those in many cities. The Ford plant is a case in point. It ran continuously from early spring until November, and after a brief closing opened again and is now operating on a large schedule with more than 1,000 men. Ford plants in Seattle and Long Beach have been closed. Richmond is building Ford cars for the western states.

Few plants in Richmond have closed even during the dullest times of the depression. A part time schedule has been maintained in most of them, giving the workers some income.

The Chamber of Commerce greets its members and the city in general.

The city of Richmond greets the world.

We serve notice that we intend to hold our place in the scheme of things, and to go forward to a greater destiny.

We'll be doing both those things all through 1934.

SO . . . LET'S GO!

Suggested Methods for Controlling the Weight Of Human Body

DR. L. H. NEWBURGH of Ann Arbor, mentioned in a recent column, has given us much useful knowledge concerning obesity by his experiments. For example, an overweight person suffering from some disturbance of the glands of internal secretion was placed on a reducing diet. For fifteen days his diet was so much below the metabolic requirements that he theoretically have lost 6.6 pounds. In fact, he lost one-third of an ounce. Determination of the water balance showed a retention of water weighing 6 pounds during this time.

IN THE succeeding nine days his weight fell 8.8 pounds, instead of an expected 3.6 pounds. This illustrates well the type of fat person who "cannot lose weight no matter how little he eats," and demonstrates the necessity of continuing a reducing diet to the point where the water equilibrium is again established. Probably that is the reason the eighteen-day diet has been so popular for a few years.

IN CONTRAST to this case is one of the so-called lean type who couldn't put on weight. This one was indifferent to food and never ate much. When he was placed on a 5,000-calory diet for fifteen days he gained 9.7 pounds. On the basis of fat and protein stored, his gain should have been only 5.9 pounds, but his determination of water balance accounted for the extra 7.8 pounds.

THESE experiments prove that the law of conservation and equalization of energy holds in a living body. An excessive intake of food results in a gain of weight and a deficient intake brings a loss of weight, providing the digestion and absorption of food into the blood stream is within normal limits. It has been claimed that certain persons are predisposed to put on fat. Those with lack of thyroid secretion are normally overweight; but careful checking has proven that, though they appear fat and puffy, still they are often really underweight.

MANY other explanations of fatness can have been suggested, but the compensation between food intake and energy output, then to bring about reduction there should be considerable difference between the food consumed and the energy needs.

WE COULD increase the energy output through stimulating metabolism by thyroid medication or by very great increase in physical activity. Thyroid medication is always safe as we can produce an excess of thyroid, with resulting toxic rather symptoms, and we all know that the fat man takes no pleasure in a great increase in his physical activity. He just cannot bring himself to it. Because the excess of weight has already put an increased strain on the vital organs, they cannot stand much more, and the individual will soon lose interest in reducing.

THE practical method of reducing weight is by control of food intake. In planning a diet which must be continued for some length of time, we should make it complete in all constituents and deficient only in the number of calories. It should also be calculated on the normal weight of that individual and not upon his weight at the time

SOME carbohydrates should be provided to burn up the fats or to have an acidity. The fat intake should be only that which cannot be separated from the proteins. So far as possible all fat food must be let alone. Thus the fats already stored to excess in the system will be called upon and utilized by the organs of assimilation. In their combustion and excretion, energy will be supplied and the unwanted poundage will be reduced.

ALL the tempting tidbits, candy, cream sodas, refreshments between meals, must be avoided. If these diet restrictions are persisted in, the results will be satisfactory.

A GOOD SKIN AIDS MAKE-UP AS BEAUTIFIER

By JACQUELINE HUNT

IF YOU are going to live up to your resolution to learn more about make-up, you will have to devote some little time to studying the effect of different colors on your skin. After you have chosen a powder that matches your skin as nearly as possible, you give it smooth, flatter texture, turn to rouge and lipstick. These are such vital parts of the make-up scheme.

Use the utmost discrimination in selecting these two cosmetics. See if the tones of your skin conflict with the rouges that have a good deal of orange in their colors. If you can wear them fine—they give your skin a youthful glow. Or does your skin become enchanting when you use a brilliant red? Or is it better with a dark rouge that has a hint of purple in its tones? Many women ask whether they should use a paste rouge or a dry rouge.

Both have their uses. For general use, the paste rouge is better, since it goes so more smoothly and naturally and is less likely to clog the pores. For evening, when you want a lasting make-up and want to be able to restore or add more color easily, use a powder rouge once you are creamed. It intensifies the color and will last for hours. Then I like the powder rouge when I am traveling and there is little time to go through careful make-up routines. It takes but a second to add a whiff to each cheek and it can be retouched as often as necessary.

Before buying a lipstick, find out whether it is indelible. That is, whether the excess color can be removed and still leave your lips a good red that will not come off on napkins or tissues or when you eat or drink. See that the stick spreads easily and smoothly and that the texture is soft and fine.

Resolve and this is the most important resolution that you can make—that you will cultivate a better skin to work with. If you have a fine, clear skin, the problem of applying make-up so it looks natural and enhances your beauty is a simple one. It is when there are blemishes or "allowances" to combat that make-up becomes work and results are not always what they should be.

Minor eruptions and blackheads can be effectively treated with special cleansing preparations that tend to overcome excessive oiliness and to relieve congested pores. Use a gentle astringent or tonic or ice water afterward to tighten the pores and prevent their becoming re-infected. And for that sallow look that creeps into your face when you are tired, you may find one of the ready-to-use mask preparations or a circulation cream beneficial.

Skin improvement is not accomplished by scrubbing and smoothing on creams and ointments alone. It must be improved from within, and to accomplish that you should drink eight or ten glasses of water a day, and keep your diet well balanced, yet tempting to the eye and appetite.

Out-of-door exercise, play, and at least eight or nine hours sleep are also essentials to the clear, enviable skin. I once had a teacher in physical education who said that every hour of sleep before midnight was worth two afterward. Perhaps she was old-fashioned, but try getting to bed at ten o'clock as many nights a week as you can and see what it will do for you. Unless there is something wrong with you, your eyes will be brighter and you will have about that clear, soft look that you have when you are thoroughly rested and happy about something.

ANSWER TO QUERY

Dear Miss Hunt: Is it possible to have superfluous flesh removed from the nose? How can I make my nose appear smaller, or better still, how can I actually make it smaller? How can I get rid of pimples and blackheads? How can I make my eyes appear larger and my eyelashes longer? A Reader.

Answer: It is possible to change the shape of the nose by operations that are painful, expensive and dangerous. Follow the suggestions above for clearing up your skin and the size of your nose will not be so noticeable. There is nothing that you can do really to make it smaller. Use eye-shadow on the outer part of your eyelids and darken your brows and lashes to make your eyes appear larger and lovelier.

SIMPLE MEALS EASILY MADE

By JUDITH WILSON

DELICIOUS DINNERS that are not too heavy, yet satisfying and with just a hint of the holidays to make them interesting, are in order for the balance of the week. Homemakers will not want to spend too much time in the kitchen this week, however, so the menus are planned to give the most in the way of appeal with the least effort.

Easily Prepared Meal

Most of you can prepare the first meal in little more than half an hour. First you boil your oven, and while it is heating, put a kettle of water to boil for the sweetbreads and scrub the potatoes. Pop the potatoes into the oven and drop two pairs of sweetbreads into the water to which salt and a table-spoon of vinegar has been added. Boil for fifteen or twenty minutes, drain and remove the membrane and divide into sections. Dip in undiluted evaporated milk, then into fine bread crumbs and brown slowly until melted butter. While they are browning you can prepare the peas.

Open the can and save the liquid. Melt one and one-half tablespoons butter, stir in two tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt and a few grains of pepper. Add one cup of the liquid from the peas, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens, then add one cup evaporated milk and continue cooking over hot water a few minutes longer. Add the peas to this sauce.

When the sweetbreads are browned, place on slices of buttered toast, and then pour the creamed peas over them. If you have a bit of left-over ham, cut it in thin slices, heat with the sweetbreads and serve. The combination of flavors is delicious.

By the way, you should bake enough potatoes to candy on the second day as well as furnish for the first dinner. The dessert in the first menu is cake left-over from Christmas and tea served with slices of orange or orange flavored loaf sugar.

For the second menu use canned soup. It can be opened and heated at the last moment, or heated in the can. Have your butcher prepare the pork tenderloins for you at the market season them well with salt and pepper, dip in beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs. Fry in plenty of fat in an iron skillet until nicely browned. Drain on unglazed paper and keep on a hot platter until time to serve. Garnish with cubes of cranberry jelly.

The wax beans will require longest cooking, so they should be put on first in rapidly boiling, salted water half an hour before mealtime. Let most of the liquid cook away and dress with butter. The quickest method of candying sweet potatoes is to put one cup brown sugar and one-

Sir Archibald, Britain's Army Chief ... Hitler Talks With a Frenchman

ARCHIBALD is an admirable character, and when he is in the mood he is a great deal of credit. General Sir Archibald, Britain's Army Chief, is a man of great credit. He is a man of great credit, and he is a man of great credit.

His bravery is shown by the number of decorations he has won. He is a man of great credit, and he is a man of great credit.

Born in 1871, the future general was educated at Charterhouse and the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst. He served in the South African War from 1899 to 1902 and was wounded twice, awarded the Queen's medal with four clasps and the King's medal with two clasps.

During the World War, Sir Archibald rose to the rank of general. He was mentioned for bravery in despatches five times and earned the D.S.M. (Distinguished Service Medal) in 1918. He was also mentioned for bravery in the Battle of the Somme.

The General's name was not always as long as it is now. He was born Montgomery and married a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire. His wife was a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, and she was a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire.

When the property came to General Montgomery and his wife, she changed her name to Lady Montgomery. She was a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, and she was a daughter of the Duke of Devonshire.

"CONVERSATIONS are a technical matter in diplomacy. The word can mean anything. But the conversations of late between Chancellor Hitler and French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet have been at the top of their class, of the very first importance. Or so the world believes."

The French Ambassador in Berlin is a Frenchman of Frenchmen. He looks the part, up to full theatrical perfection. He is handsome, with a Gallic dash, and wears his diplomatic uniform in a way to make Adolphe Menjou weep.

A few years ago he was busy with internal affairs, as Under Secretary for National Economy. He represented France at a big European conference, tackling that troublesome world-wide problem of the surplus. A little more than two years ago he was sent across the Rhine to be Ambassador.

He was chosen because he did not have diplomatic background. He had been a politician and industrialist, active in the invasion of the Ruhr, a rockbound conservative adverse to anything Socialistic, and therefore, it was considered, a practical man to deal with a factual situation. He still has it to deal with.

One of Ambassador Francois-Poncet's secretaries is a handsome young man, the son of former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon and of former Ambassador Walter E. Edges. It is a testimonial to help in completing the Hoover moratorium.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "When speaking of your husband's folks, when you own folks are living, is it correct to prefix 'mother' and 'father' to their names, calling them 'Mother Johnson' and 'Father Johnson'?" P. K. T.

ANSWER: Police society friends upon the form suggested. If an aunt, a wife, a grandfather or sister-in-law are spoken of as such, why shouldn't a mother-in-law and a father-in-law be referred to as such? For those sensitive persons who find it difficult to utter the words mother-in-law and father-in-law, "John's mother" and "John's father" are recommended instead.

QUESTION: "In choosing godparents, should they be selected from among one's friends or relatives?" ANSWER: Godparents are generally intimate friends of the child's parents rather than relatives.

BEHAVIOR CODE MIGHT BE GOOD NEW YEAR IDEA

By MARIAN MAYN MARTIN

CODES are in the air. Every body seems to be working out some code of conduct, in fact, that complying with it may not concoct a code of your own, a personal behavior code, which is much to be desired through the new year.

By calling New Year's resolutions by a new name, we may be better inclined to live up to them. The North American Review, any way, is about the first of the year as a new time as a new time as a new time.

It is quite likely that we have acquired some rather useless habits that must be sacrificed at barren prices. It is also within the range of possibility that we may have developed an asset or two during the lean year behind us, a year that was calculated to bring out either the best or the worst in us.

WHO knows but what we might have developed something worth having, like self-control, for instance. It's amazing how useful self-control is, and to what a variety of uses it may be put. It not only applies to temper, but to temperament. If, then, you find that your stock of self-control is growing, resolve at once to specialize on this very excellent and useful brand of character.

IT'S quite likely that you may also find your stock of patience has either diminished or grown, and you are sure to find in looking over your supply of tolerance that it has increased considerably, even though there has been more demand for it than usual. Follow through with this personal and intimate inventory before you pin any little castles, blue or otherwise, on your chest, and since the investigation is entirely a private one, do not spare yourself. Use honest weights and measures, and remember you would only be cheating yourself if you did otherwise.

IN A WORLD of changing standards, it stands to reason that some of the virtues and vices may have undergone a slight fluctuation in value. It is up to rank the highest of all virtues. Does it now? Yes, undoubtedly, since the term implies so much. It is safe to assume that being charitably disposed toward one's neighbor implies other sterling qualities as well.

WOMEN who are charitably disposed toward each other cannot possibly give themselves over to gossip—that is, the malicious sort. The whole world is gossiping, but only a certain amount of gossip is good, and unless you indulge in back-biting, which is what most of us have in mind when the word gossip is used.

THERE is no place for the slanderer or the back-biter in the code we have in mind, even though it is an inviolable case, punishment overtakes those who indulge in this particularly unbecoming practice. In order to play fair—shoot straight and infuse the phrase—it is your duty to denounce the first woman you meet who, with malice aforethought, repeats something derogatory against someone not present to defend herself. Or, even worse, who puts her own interpretations, always the worst, on some innocent remark or act.

OUR government has tried to make it clear that the only law for the nation is to pull together. There is no reason, is there, for women to suppose that they were excluded in this? Conditions are precarious enough without having warring tongues complicating matters, and keeping everyone so stirred up over their petty, personal affairs that they haven't the courage or strength to pull together for the common weal.

DON'T, for one moment, allow yourself to think that women are really the forgotten ones in the New Deal, and that the world "ain't done right by our girls." It is no time to nurse grudges, imaginary or real, or to spend one's time and energy on petty issues.

IF THE law of compensation still works, and it's one of the laws to hold to, we have gained something to compensate for what we have lost. And that something gives us a slight advantage and something to hold to when we work out our own personal, private and particular code.

PROSECUTOR ASKS DEATH FOR SLAYER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—UP.—The fate of Edward Anderson, on a charge of slaying Hewlett Tarr, Curran theater treasurer, went to the jury at 5:10 this afternoon, and at 11 o'clock there was no verdict rendered. The jury was then locked up for the night.

Anderson testified in his defense before a packed courtroom. His story was answered by a plea from Prosecutor William Murphy that the death penalty be enacted.

"I was dazed," said Anderson, telling of the attempted theater holdup and of Tarr's death.

"I had just cleared the gun over the railing of the box office window when it went off.

"I saw the man put his hand to his side, but I didn't know he was dead until the next morning."

A bench warrant was issued today for arrest of Robert Bell, prosecution witness, in whose taxicab Anderson fled the theater after the shooting.

Bell failed to appear in court voluntarily and the prosecution concluded its case without him.

When he appeared at the afternoon session, he was not asked to testify. Judge Ward ordered him imprisoned in county jail for contempt of court.

CHECKING OF INFLATION IS POSSIBLE

GRAPE MEN OBJECTING TO LIQUOR LAW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—UP.—A check on inflation and consumption of liquor by the federal government is being considered by the House of Representatives.

The House committee on the subject of liquor, headed by Representative Charles McNary, of Oregon, is studying a bill which would require the federal government to check the production of liquor in the United States.

The bill would require the federal government to check the production of liquor in the United States.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—UP.—The California grape and wine industry tonight expressed its own opposition to a liquor law which would require the federal government to check the production of liquor in the United States.

The industry, represented by the California Wine Producers' Association and the California Grape Growers' League, said that the law would be a burden on the industry.

The industry said that the law would require the federal government to check the production of liquor in the United States.

Coast Is Reborn

A BRAZEN step-child of repeal, San Francisco's famed Barbary Coast—banished for years—has been reborn. Famous resorts, such as "Spider Kelly's" "The Dragon" pictured above, and accompanied by dozens of others equally as famous, have been reopened after being dark for 13 years.

EL CERRITO DANCE HOURS ARE FIXED

On a motion of Councilman Phil A. Lee the council at El Cerrito at its meeting Tuesday night instructed City Attorney T. H. Delap to draw up an ordinance fixing the time of closing at 2 A. M. on week days and 3 A. M. on Sundays and holidays. The ordinance also prohibit the sale of food and drink.

The present dance ordinance simply requires a permit to be taken out and the hours of closing are fixed by the council.

A motion regarding stricter regulation of dances, providing the applicant must have been a resident of the city for a period of six months and that entertainers could not leave the premises without paying a fee, which had passed the committee, was tabled indefinitely.

A communication from Mrs. Mary Stevens in behalf of the El Cerrito P. T. A. thanking the council for the money given them for their work was read and placed on file.

All special officers on duty at the El Cerrito Kennel Club were discharged on a motion of Councilman Phil A. Lee who stated the track was closed.

Councilman W. F. Hooper who voted against the motion said the dog track had not requested the officers discharged, and the track would open again in a short time. He did not see any reason for the council's action.

High Tide Floats Stranded Boat

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—UP.—The freighter Peter Keri of the Quaker line, which grounded on a sandbank at Asuncion bay, was refloated at high tide today under its own power, the company's offices were informed by radio.

The vessel, apparently undamaged by its 24 hour stranding, proceeded toward San Diego, although at the time it struck the ship was bound for New York.

Asuncion bay is near the tip of Lower California, 600 miles south of here.

Divorce Cases Are Settled by Court

MARTINEZ, Dec. 26.—UP.—Two divorces were granted today by Judge T. D. Johnston.

Mrs. Miriam Batten was given a decree of divorce from George Batten on cruelty grounds, and was also allowed $45 monthly for support of children. Attorney T. N. Calfee represented the plaintiff.

Mrs. Vera Lavigne was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Louis Lavigne on grounds of cruelty. The plaintiff also had T. N. Calfee as her counsel.

An annulment was granted to Grace Hammond from Rice Hammond. He claimed that he married her only after she threatened to kill him.

Arms Increase Is Considered

PARIS, Dec. 26.—UP.—Germany's demands for rearmament were considered at a special meeting of cabinet leaders tonight, including Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour.

The government's attitude will be expressed at tomorrow's ministerial council at the Elysee Palace, it was understood. The cabinet was relieved of direct negotiations with the German government, and possibly will insist that France in future will only admit arms negotiations with Germany within the scope of the League of Nations.

De launay demanded that he be permitted to increase his army to 100,000 men, probably will be rejected.

The decision of the Republican leadership not to place the party in the office of the nation where it could be accused of harboring a "pro-foreign" program has been generally accepted by the G. O. P. rank and file. The party's attitude, however, was the most definite outline of the Republican plans to come from one of its leaders.

Representative Shell, Republican leader of the House, recently declared his party would not oppose legislation for the administration of the recovery efforts.

Shell said he had no intention of offering any bill to withdraw or limit the powers given the President at the last session of Congress.

The House provision of the National Recovery Act, he admitted, was limited to a year from the date of enactment. Most of the other emergency legislation likewise carries a time limit. He expressed the hope that the President's provisions, which have not been invoked by the NRA, would not be renewed by Congress.

The Pennsylvania senator said four mistakes were made by the President in dealing with the currency problem and listed them as follows:

1. The President should have opposed the Thompson amendment giving him broad currency expansion powers instead of supporting it.
2. The gold clause in government securities should not have been repudiated.
3. The policy of buying gold above the world market price has failed.
4. The policy of buying and committing newly issued government securities to the Congressional silver fund is not a soundly planned but probably will lead to disastrous demands for further inflation.

"We have not had any real inflation yet in any sense," Shell continued. "It is not too late for the President to get his foot down and say 'we won't do it.' If he were to do that, there would be an outburst of confidence such as we have known in the United States since the depression settled down."

A Real Advance in Motor Car Engineering

De Luxe Fordor Sedan. One of eleven handsome new body types, all with V-8 cylinder motor

New Dual Carburetion and Dual Intake Manifold add to power and economy of the New Ford V-8 for 1934

LIKE a pair of lungs for this powerful motor, this new system of carburetion and intake supplies vaporized gasoline evenly to all eight cylinders. Two distinct advantages result from it:

1. More even compression of fuel, giving still greater power, faster acceleration, quicker starting and smoother performance in cold weather.
2. More complete utilization of fuel, more miles to the gallon of gasoline, with consequent economy. Crankcase dilution is reduced to a minimum, thereby conserving oil with still further economy in operation.

Increased efficiency at less cost is a notable achievement. Yet it is only one of many improvements which distinguish this new and greater Ford V-8 for 1934.

Clear-vision Ventilation. Constant Supply of Fresh Air without Drafts or Obstruction to View

As perfected in the New Ford, this system of ventilation operates efficiently at all speeds, winter or summer.

In cold or stormy weather, the new adjustable window ventilators can be opened the desired amount to provide fresh air. Individual control on front door and rear-quarter windows enables passengers to obtain desired ventilation without causing discomfort to others. Windshield and windows do not fog when ventilators are opened.

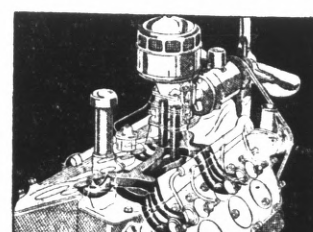

In warm weather, the windshield—which opens—and the cowl ventilator provide additional fresh air.
